XIV All-Russian Scientific Conference RCDL-2012 "Digital Libraries: Advanced Methods and Technologies, Digital Collections"

Pereslavl-Zalessky, October 15 - 18, 2012

<http://rcdl2012.pereslavl.ru>

Digital Libraries (DL) is a field of research and development aimed at promotion of the theory and practice of processing, distribution, storage, retrieval and analysis of digital objects of different nature. These contemporary repositories of knowledge appear as complex information systems, development and use of which require the solution of many scientific, technological, methodological, economic, legal and other issues.

The series of the All-Russian scientific conferences RCDL is presented on the site <http://rcdl.ru>. They aimed at the formation of the Russian corps of the global DL community of scientists.

As a tradition, the related seminars and Doctoral workshop are co-located with the conference.

Conference Proceedings will be published as a collection of full texts of accepted papers, short papers and abstracts of posters, as well as in electronic form to provide for better visibility of RCDL-2012 publications for the international scientific community via DBLP Computer Science Bibliography.

Selected presented at the conference articles will be recommended by the Program Committee to publication, indexed by other author citation indexing systems as the Russian Science Citation Index (RINC), Google Scholar and MathNet.

May 20, 2012 — submission deadline for extended abstracts, at least 2000 words including references, in Russian or English.

April 1, 2012 — deadline for applications of tutorials and co-located workshops.

June 24, 2012 — before this date authors of papers will be notified on the paper status (accepted / rejected).

September 3, 2012 — deadline for the camera ready accepted papers submission.
